

HORROR

Strange Weather by Joe Hill

A collection of four short chilling novels, ingeniously wrought gems of terror, Snapshot, Aloft, Rain, and Loaded. Masterfully exploring classic literary themes through the prism of the supernatural, Strange Weather is a stellar collection.

Pivot by L.C. Barlow

For some, the Devil introduces himself as an average man. For others, he crushes their souls and makes them bleed. For Jack, Harper, the Devil renders himself a savior. But things are changing. Once a loyal follower and an accomplished killer, Jack Harper now begins to question everything.

FIC BARLOW

Bird Box by Josh Malerman

In an apocalyptic near-future world, a mother and her two small children must make their way down a river, blindfolded. One wrong choice and they will die. And something is following them -- but is it man, animal, or monster?

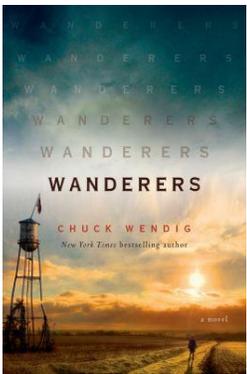

FIC MALERMAN

The Twisted Ones by T. Kingfisher

Mouse stumbles across her step-grandfather's journal, which at first seems to be the ravings of a broken mind. Until she encounters some of the things he described herself. Alone in the woods with her dog, Mouse confronts a series of impossible terrors. If she doesn't face them head on, she might not survive to tell the tale.

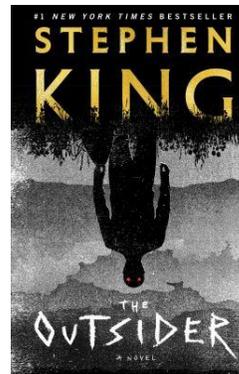

FIC KINGFISHER

Wanderers by Chuck Wendig

A decadent rock star. A deeply religious radio host. A disgraced scientist. And a teenage girl who may be the world's last hope. As the rest of society collapses all around them, the fate of their loved ones depends on unraveling the mystery behind the epidemic.

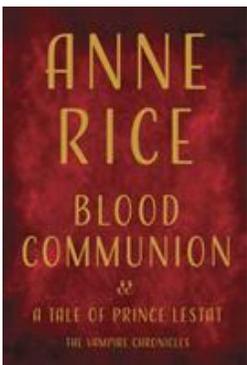

FIC WENDIG

The Outsider by Stephen King

An eleven-year-old boy's violated corpse is found in a town park. Eyewitnesses and fingerprints point to Terry Maitland. But Maitland has an alibi, and his story has evidence of its own. How can two opposing stories be true? When must reason or rationality be abandoned in order to explain the inexplicable?
